Welcome to William & Mary Law School’s Externship Program. Recognizing that supervision and mentoring of externs take considerable time and effort, we greatly appreciate your participation. You play an important role in our mission to educate students and to prepare them to be responsive, creative, and ethical professionals. We are confident that your involvement will be enjoyable and rewarding for you and our students.

This Handbook provides information about our Externship Program’s objectives and requirements. We hope it will assist you in partnering with externs to assure a beneficial educational experience.

The Externship Program is conducted in compliance with Executive Committee Regulation 6-7.10 of the Association of American Law Schools and American Bar Association Standard 305. Standard 305 describes the experiential, academic, and instructional requirements that law schools and students must meet to secure ABA approval. In addition, Interpretation 305-3 states that a student may not earn externship credit and compensation for the same hours. However, an extern may be reimbursed for reasonable out-of-pocket expenses related to the externship.1

William & Mary Law School offers externships for J.D. students who have completed at least one full academic year and for LL.M. students who have completed at least one full semester. J.D. students who have completed at least two full academic years and who have a cumulative GPA of at least 3.0 are also eligible for the Washington, DC, Fall Semester Externship.

Externships are educational experiences that complement traditional classroom learning. They aid in enhancing skills in research, problem solving, and written and oral communication; exercising professional and ethical responsibilities to clients and the legal system; learning about different practice settings; and developing other professional skills needed for competent and ethical participation as a member of the legal profession. Externships also offer potential for client contact, writing samples, and exposure to a broad range of substantive and procedural law.

Externs are not necessarily entitled to a job at the conclusion of an externship with your organization and are not entitled to wages for the time spent in the externship.

Learning under the instruction of a licensed attorney, judge, legislator, or certified mediator, externs forge a link between theory and practice. They apply classroom knowledge to resolving actual problems and establish mentoring relationships with field supervisors. In certain instances externs may be permitted to engage in limited, supervised practice of law under the Supreme Court of Virginia’s Third-Year Practice Rule.

SUMMARY OF ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS

Each credit requires 40 externship hours. Hours must be spread over at least five weeks. Externs also attend classes, submit journals, and prepare a final report. Externships are graded Pass/Fail.²

Placements in which the extern’s role is primarily or exclusively observational will not be approved. To be approved, at least 75% of the extern’s hours must be non-observational (e.g., research; writing; client/witness interviews; constituent relations; preparation for/conducting hearings, trials, and appeals). To count toward the 25% maximum observation hours, the observation must include substantive, reflective discussion between the extern and Field Supervisor.

Moreover, at least 75% of the extern’s total hours need to be completed at the externship site, in court, or at client sites, unless the student obtains the Associate Dean’s prior approval. Because externships are not a proxy for remote research positions and because the externship program’s educational and professional development objectives rarely can be accomplished through a remote arrangement, externships that do not satisfy the 75% on-site requirement will be approved only in compelling circumstances.

In addition to completing the specified number of hours, externs submit journals and a final report. Externs attend mandatory classes. Summer externs submit two additional journals in lieu of classes. Because students’ journals and reports include candid reflections about their externships – but do not include confidential client information – field supervisors cannot review journals or reports.

EXTERNSHIP DESCRIPTIONS

William & Mary offers the following externships. All externships are offered during summer, fall, and spring semesters and are eligible for 1, 2, or 3 credits per semester, except as noted below.

Externships with partisan political organizations, involving partisan political activities, or involving lobbying are not eligible for externship credit.

² As of March 2016, externships are graded Pass/Fail. The Pass/Fail system for externship grades may change to High Pass/Pass/Low Pass/Fail before the 2016-17 academic year starts.
FEDERAL GOVERNMENT EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include federal agencies (including JAG Corps). They also include Congressional committees and members of Congress, subject to the prohibition on partisan political activities and lobbying mentioned above. Federal Public Defenders are covered by the Public Defender Externship; U.S. Attorney offices are covered by the U.S. Attorney Externship.

JUDICIAL EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include judges (including administrative law judges), hearing officers, courts, and organizations that provide research, educational, and management services to judges and courts (e.g., the National Center for State Courts, the Federal Judicial Center, the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts).

NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include U.S. civil legal services/legal aid organizations and U.S. private, nonprofit, 501(c)(3) organizations. Private nonprofit organizations with IRS status other than 501(c)(3) are not eligible for externship credit. Organizations outside the U.S. are eligible if they would qualify for 501(c)(3) status if they were U.S. organizations.

PRIVATE PRACTICE/IN HOUSE COUNSEL EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include solo practitioners, law firms, and in-house law departments of corporations and trade associations.

PROSECUTOR EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include state and local prosecutors. Placements with U.S. Attorney offices are covered by the U.S. Attorney Externship.

PUBLIC DEFENDER EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include federal, state, and local public defenders.

STATE/LOCAL GOVERNMENT EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include state or local government agencies and offices, such as city/county attorneys, attorneys general, and state legislators. This type of externship covers all William & Mary offices. Placements with prosecutors and public defenders are covered by their respective externships described above.

U.S. ATTORNEY EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include the civil or criminal divisions of U.S. Attorney offices.
VIRGINIA ATTORNEY GENERAL EXTERNSHIP:

Eligible placements include the divisions/sections of the Virginia Attorney General’s office.

WASHINGTON, DC, FALL SEMESTER EXTERNSHIP: (3LS WITH MINIMUM 3.0 GPA; 12 CREDITS)

Eligible placements include federal, state, and local government agencies, courts/judges, prosecutors, public defenders, legal aid offices, or 501(c)(3) organizations in Washington, DC, or the Northern Virginia or Maryland suburbs of DC.

ARRANGING AN EXTERNSHIP

Arranging an externship is a four-step process:

(1) The student contacts a potential Field Supervisor from among the Law School’s pre-approved externships, from a referral provided by the Associate Dean, or from the student’s own network. Regardless of the method of contact, the Field Supervisor determines the application process and selects the extern. The Law School does not select externs for Field Supervisors.

(2) When the Field Supervisor selects an extern, the Field Supervisor and extern complete an Externship Objectives and Site Agreement (EOSA). The student will provide the EOSA to you. The Statement of Skills and Values from the ABA’s MacCrate Report is included as an appendix to this Handbook; the Statement of Skills and Values may be helpful in formulating the extern’s objectives.

(3) The student registers for the Externship course.

(4) The extern submits the completed EOSA to the Associate Dean for approval.

FIELD SUPERVISORS’ RESPONSIBILITIES

Field Supervisors are an essential part of the extern’s education and professional development. Field Supervisors should have sufficient experience, training, authority, and availability to assure that externs have meaningful opportunities to participate in activities that will enhance their knowledge and professional development, to receive substantive assignments, and to get meaningful instruction and feedback. The following information is offered to help achieve these goals.

Students may not extern for a field supervisor to whom they are related. Nor may a student extern for a field supervisor with whom the student has a relationship that potentially could affect the supervisor’s ability to objectively and impartially supervise/evaluate the student, even if the relationship does not actually affect the supervisor’s ability to do so.
To assure consistent compliance with ABA, AALS, and William & Mary policies, Field Supervisors may not modify course requirements or academic policies or read students’ journals or reports.

A. Conducting an Initial Meeting with the Extern

It is important that the Field Supervisor conduct an initial meeting with the extern before the extern starts. We request that you cover the following items, as well as others you deem important for your office:

- What is the overarching mission of your office? An explanation of your mission, services, clients, and office structure will provide a context for the extern’s experience and for classroom discussion.
- If your entity is a private nonprofit organization or a government agency, what are the funding sources?
- How will you and the extern mutually assure that the objectives in the Externship Objectives and Site Agreement will be achieved? Setting up a schedule of periodic meetings will help to assure the objectives are met or to modify the objectives if necessary.
- What will the extern’s schedule be? What is your office’s inclement weather policy? What meetings, proceedings, or other events should the extern plan to attend? There may be days of the week or times of day that will be best for meeting your and the extern’s objectives. We realize that not everything may be scheduled in advance, but the more that can be set ahead of time, the better you and the extern will be able to plan. The extern will want to know how and to whom to communicate if illness or other unanticipated absence conflicts with the agreed upon schedule.
- What are your expectations for confidentiality and professional responsibility? We and our students take very seriously matters of professionalism, ethics, and integrity. Externs are expected to abide by your jurisdictions Rules of Professional Conduct; please remind them of that expectation.
- What is the “chain of command”? Understanding lines of authority will help the extern to prioritize assignments and to determine whom to contact if you are unavailable.
- Which of your office colleagues should the extern meet? Introduction to others in the office will allow the extern to feel part of your team.
- How will timely, constructive, specific feedback be provided for each assignment? Scheduling periodic meetings will help assure that the extern receives appropriate feedback. Please refer to “Providing Feedback” below for additional information.
- When will midpoint and final evaluation meetings occur? Who will conduct them?
B. Assigning Projects to the Extern

Externs are happy to pitch in to meet your office’s needs. It is important, however, that the vast majority of externs’ experience be substantive (e.g., researching, writing, interviewing clients and witnesses, drafting documents, assisting with discovery, or analyzing legislation). Please ensure that administrative support such as filing and faxing be minimized and incidental to the extern’s substantive experiences.

When you make assignments, please inform the extern about office resources (e.g., templates, brief banks, specialized research tools), format of the final product (oral vs. written, formal vs. informal, draft vs. final version), and due date. That will enable the extern to meet your expectations and to complete the assignment independently and with minimal supervision.

We also recommend that you provide the extern with some context for each assignment. The assignment may be focused (e.g., whether an agency relationship exists), but the underlying context may be broad (e.g., whether an employment discrimination claim is meritorious). Having that context will help the extern understand the practical impact of the assignment and how it fits into the big picture.

An extern may assist more than one member of your office. In the event that someone other than the Field Supervisor gives assignments to an extern, the Field Supervisor should first approve the assignment to assure that it will fit into the extern’s overall assignment load.

C. Preventing Unauthorized Practice of Law

Please be vigilant that the extern does not engage in the unauthorized practice of law (UPL). Generally, the extern will not engage in UPL if hours are completed under the direct supervision of a lawyer licensed in the jurisdiction in which the student is externing.

D. Using Proprietary Research Products and Databases

Externs are permitted to use proprietary research products and databases only if that use is consistent with the respective vendors’ policies.

As of March 10, 2016, LexisNexis permits use of its services in unpaid, credit-bearing externships via your student password.

As of March 10, 2016, Westlaw permits use of its services in unpaid, credit-bearing externships via your student password. The externship must be with a nonprofit and non-government entity.

E. Assuring Externs’ Time, Expenses, and Proprietary Research are not Billed

Externs’ time, expenses, and use of any proprietary research products and databases cannot be billed to clients. It is important that Field Supervisors and anyone externs assist abide by this policy.
F. Avoiding Partisan Political Activities and Lobbying
Externs are not permitted to engage in partisan political activities or lobbying.

G. Providing Feedback
Our students are extremely talented, accomplished, and personable. They set very high standards for their educational and professional development. We, too, have very high standards for them. We expect all of our students to be reliable, responsive, courteous, respectful, and professional. Their final product always should be first-rate. We know that you share these standards. Timely, specific, constructive feedback is essential for externs to meet your, their, and our standards.

Externs want and need feedback, both positive and corrective. Please provide feedback to the extern after the completion of each assignment.

It is also important that you conduct at least two evaluation sessions – one at the midpoint of the externship and another, final evaluation meeting at the conclusion of the externship. Discuss both the substance of the extern’s assignment and the processes the extern used. Point out explicitly what the extern did well and areas for improvement. The form you will use to complete the final evaluation is available here.

Having externs evaluate themselves is a useful way to initiate feedback. The extern’s self-evaluation provides an opportunity for you to build on the extern’s assessment. Self-assessment also encourages the extern to move through the learning process from completing projects, analyzing performance, and identifying goals for future performance. In addition, this process reinforces a pattern of reflective thinking.

Field Supervisors’ general statements such as “good job” or “you'll do better with practice” – by themselves – do not help the extern to learn. Likewise, a “no news is good news” approach does not contribute to the externs’ educational/professional growth. Externs will learn best from specific feedback and examples.

We recommend that you begin your feedback session with a general statement about the extern’s overall performance. Follow this general assessment with specific comments. For example, in discussing an extern-conducted client interview, a statement, “You developed a nice rapport with your client” would be more meaningful if supplemented with something like “You made the client comfortable when you said, ‘I can see that you are concerned about this, Ms. Jones, and I am going to do everything I can to assist you.’”
ADDRESSING POTENTIAL PROBLEMS

In virtually all externships, Field Supervisors and externs have beneficial experiences and enjoy a successful mentor/extern relationship. However, there are rare occasions when the externship does not go as smoothly as everyone would like. Please contact the Associate Dean as soon as you determine that you and the extern are not able to resolve a problem. Similarly, if an extern has a concern we ask that the student first contact you for resolution, absent compelling circumstances.

SHARING YOUR SUGGESTIONS FOR ENHANCING THE EXTERNSHIP PROGRAM

We welcome your ideas for enhancing the externship program’s procedures or substance. Please share your thoughts with us.

Thank you for the significant time, energy, and effort you devote to supervising William & Mary Law externs.
The student will complete a portion of the Externship Objectives and Site Agreement and email it to you. When you receive the agreement, please complete your portion after discussion with the student. Then email the form with your completed portion to the student. Adobe Reader is required to complete the form and can be downloaded here. Please save the document to your computer before you complete it.
