A. BENJAMIN SPENCER
Dean and Chancellor Professor

When you join William & Mary Law School, you become part of a long tradition of legal excellence and commitment to justice. Our graduates are some of the most accomplished in the world. They go on to pursue impactful careers that make a difference, whether that be in the public sector — as judges, prosecutors, public defenders, or legal aid attorneys — or in the private sector serving clients in law firms or as in-house counsel.

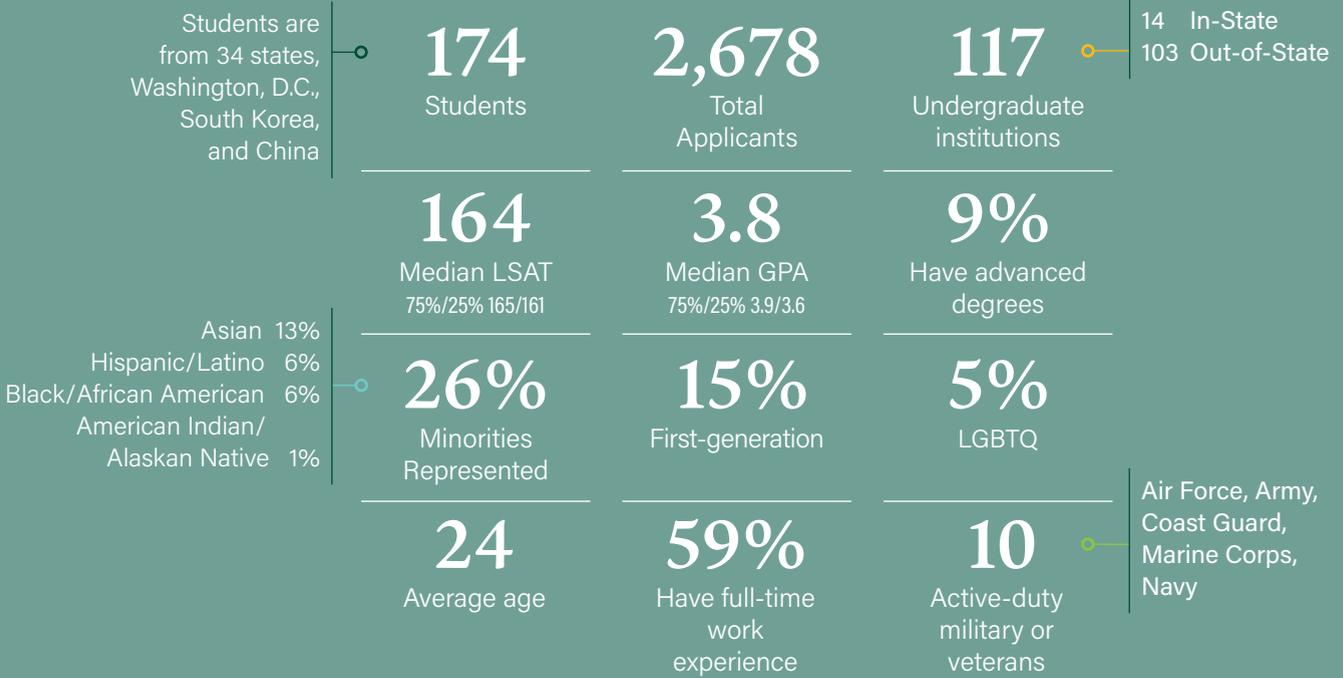

Our students come from across the world and from diverse backgrounds to form a vibrant and supportive community. Here, you will make true connections that last a lifetime. Our faculty and staff are committed to providing you the best legal education, outstanding career placement services, and a multitude of opportunities to immerse yourself in activities and work experiences that prepare you for a career in the law. We're here to ensure that you become a well-trained advocate, positioned for success.

I welcome you to become a member of this unparalleled community.

Center for Racial & Social Justice

Directed by Vivian Hamilton, Professor of Law; Affiliated Professor, Gender, Sexuality, and Women's Studies

The Center for Racial & Social Justice works to advance the cause of racial and social justice by educating students and the broader community, building students' capacity to engage in antiracist and social justice work, and engaging in legal and multidisciplinary research and advocacy aimed to inform the public, advocates, and policymakers — both in the Commonwealth of Virginia and nationwide.

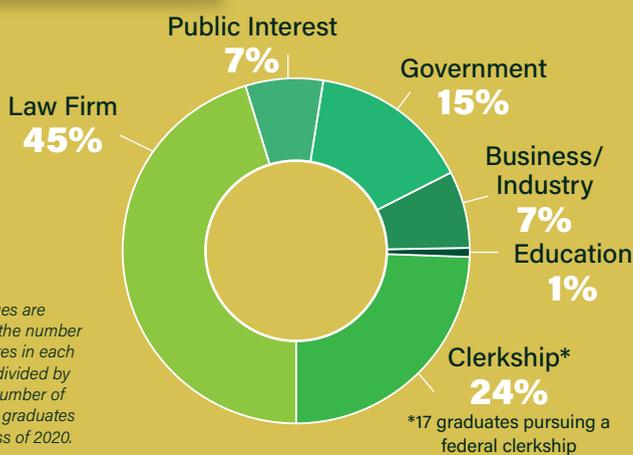

“Students are given an enormous amount of responsibility in the Clinic. Many of our clients are survivors of violence and trauma who continually navigate a great number of personal and structural barriers. The Clinic is committed to training trauma-informed advocates, which means we teach students to consider the impact of trauma on our clients at every stage of case development and preparation. I hope that — in addition to the practice skills — students learn that being an effective legal advocate is a multi-dimensional endeavor: you have to marry the practical lawyering skills with productive and informed client management, team work, self-care and reflection.”
