MESSAGE FROM

The Dean & The Chair

Dear Graduates, Parents, and Friends,

With the year ending June 30, the Law School's Annual Fund celebrated eighteen years of continuous growth and achieved a new milestone. Donors contributed $1,907,660 in Annual Fund dollars by year's end, compared to $1,553,017 in FY '11. This was the largest one-year increase in the fund ever achieved. Overall giving in FY '12 totaled $2,805,400, the third largest amount in our history.

Financial support from alumni is essential to our success. We appreciate that so many of you support your alma mater to the degree that you can despite the challenging economy. Every gift — no matter the amount — makes a difference. Using the latest comparative data available (from FY '11), only 24 law schools (out of the almost 200 in the nation) had alumni giving percentage rates equaling or exceeding 20 percent. Among this elite group, Marshall-Wythe's alumni participation rate of 23.7% earned us 14th place overall (and 6th among state-supported schools).

We take enormous pride as a community in Marshall-Wythe's unique history as the nation's first law school, in our enduring success at educating citizen lawyers, and in our faculty of dedicated teachers and scholars. Your financial support helps to provide our students with the exceptional learning experiences and the skills training they will need to become practice-ready graduates.

With your continued encouragement and support, we believe that Marshall-Wythe's best days truly lie ahead of us.

Sincerely,

Davison M. Douglas, Dean

ARTHUR B. HANSON PROFESSOR OF LAW

LAW SCHOOL ANNUAL FUND

HIGHLIGHTS

Spring & Fall 2012

FACULTY

The Board of Visitors approved the following promotions: Tara Leigh Grove, from assistant to associate professor of law; Nathan B. Oman, from associate professor to professor of law (with tenure); Patricia E. Roberts, from clinical assistant to clinical associate professor of law.

Professor Sarah L. Stafford was named director of the College's Thomas Jefferson Program in Public Policy.

Professor William W. Van Alstyne retired from full-time teaching but will continue to teach occasional courses. He joined the faculty in 2004 as Lee Professor of Law following a distinguished career on the Duke Law School faculty. He is widely regarded as one of the nation's most preeminent constitutional law scholars. In June the Michigan Law Review published a list of the most-cited law review articles of all time. Number 35 on the list is a renowned article by Professor Van Alstyne titled "The Demise of the Right-Privilege Distinction in Constitutional Law," 81 Harvard Law Review 1439 (1968).

Honors

Professors Peter A. Alces, Neal Devins, and Nathan B. Oman were named Cabell Research Professors for the 2012–13 academic year. The professorships are made possible by an endowment from The Cabell Foundation, established by Robert G. Cabell III and Maude Morgan Cabell of Richmond, and gifts from other donors.

Professors Laura A. Heymann and Nathan B. Oman were among 20 W&M faculty who received Plumeri Awards for Faculty Excellence in recognition of exemplary achievements in teaching, research, and service.

The College also honored Professor Heymann at Charter Day with the 2012 Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award. She is the first member of the law faculty to receive this honor.

Professor Allison Orr Larsen was one of five W&M professors to receive an Alumni Fellowship Award from the W&M Alumni Association in recognition of excellence.

During the Law School's 2011 Veterans Day Observance, the Lewis B. Puller, Jr., Veterans Benefits Clinic honored Professor Fredric Lederer for his outstanding commitment to serving veterans.

Professor Timothy Zick was the second faculty member to be designated as the Robert E. '68 and Elizabeth S. Scott Research Professor of Law.

New Faculty

Professor Meredith B. Aden joined us as director of the new Legal Practice Program. She is the former director of Legal Writing at Mississippi College School of Law, where she designed and implemented a new curriculum for the 1L Legal Writing Program. She earned her J.D. at the University of Virginia and received her LL.M., with highest honors, from The George Washington University Law School. She practiced at Wise Carter Child & Caraway in Jackson, Miss., specializing in antitrust law and professional liability.

Professor Jeffrey Bellin teaches and writes in the areas of evidence, criminal law and criminal procedure and joined us from the faculty of the Southern Methodist University Dedman School of Law. He earned his J.D. at Stanford Law School (Order of the Coif) and clerked for Judge Merrick B. Garland of the U.S. Court of Appeals, D.C. Circuit. He worked as a prosecutor with the U.S. Attorney's Office in D.C., and later practiced at Latham & Watkins in San Diego.

Professor Adam M. Gershowitz specializes in criminal law and procedure. He taught previously at the University of Houston Law Center and South Texas College of Law, and has won six teaching awards in his seven years as a professor, among them a 2011–12 University of Houston Teaching Excellence Award. He received his J.D. from the University of Virginia (Order of the Coif). He clerked for Judge Robert B. King of the U.S. Court of Appeals, 4th Circuit, and was a litigation associate at Covington & Burling in D.C.

Professor Christopher L. Griffin, Jr., focuses his research on empirical studies of employment discrimination, disability, and labor law. He holds an MPhil (Economics) from the University of Oxford and graduated from Yale Law School, where he was a John M. Olin Fellow in Law and Economics, an editor of the Yale Law Journal, and editor-in-chief of the Yale Law & Policy Review. He joined us from Duke University, where he was a visiting assistant professor of law.

MOOT COURT TEAM

During the 2011–12 school year, a team competed in the National Moot Court Championships, sponsored by the American College of Trial Lawyers and New York City Bar Association, as a winner in the regional qualifier. Teams took second place honors in the Leroy Hassell, Sr., National Constitutional Law Moot Court Competition and in the Billings, Exum & Frye National Moot Court Competition. A team also advanced to the quarterfinals in the Andrews Kurth Moot Court National Championships, a tournament that included only the top 16 teams in the country.

The William and Mary Law Review is now the 18th most-cited general interest law review in the country, in a tie with the Vanderbilt Law Review, and just ahead of the University of Chicago Law Review; the William & Mary Bill of Rights Journal is now the 2nd most-cited specialty law review in civil rights, and the 4th most-cited specialty law review in constitutional law; the William & Mary Environmental Law and Policy Review is the most-cited specialty law review in energy law, and the 13th most-cited specialty law review in environmental law; the William & Mary Journal of Women and the Law is the 10th most-cited specialty law review in the fields of gender studies, women, and sexuality. Our newest law review, the William & Mary Business Law Review, is the 11th most-cited specialty law review in the fields of corporate law and business associations, and the 23rd most-cited specialty law review in commercial law. Of the 58 new student-edited law reviews established since 2010, the William & Mary Business Law Review is the second most-cited journal, trailing only the Harvard National Security Journal.

ALUMNI

More than 7,600 W&M law graduates live and work in all 50 states, D.C., and 45 other countries.

Jennifer Eaton '14 was recognized as a 2012 TowneBank Anderson Scholar. Recipients receive $5,000 scholarships created in memory of Alvin P. Anderson '72.

Craig D. Bell '86, a partner at McGuireWoods, was honored with the 2012–13 St. George Tucker Adjunct Professorship Award in recognition of his outstanding commitment to his students and service to the Law School.

Michael R. Borasky '75, a member of Eckert Seamans, was inducted as an honorary member of the Order of the Coif.

Va. Governor Bob McDonnell reappointed Robert E. Scott '68 to a second term of four years on the Board of Visitors.

U.S. District Court Judge Rebecca Beach Smith '71, JD '79 was the featured speaker at W&M's August 2012 Opening Convocation.

For honors awarded to alumni during reunions and at graduation, see pages 8 and 11.

GIVING

Gifts to the Annual Fund totaled $1,907,660 by June 30, 2012 (compared to $1,553,017 in FY '11). This was the largest one-year increase in the Annual Fund in our history. Total giving (including the Annual Fund, endowment gifts, capital [building] fund, and gifts-in-kind) came to $2,805,400 — the third largest total ever. For more on fundraising, see page 6.

Reunion classes made generous gifts and five-year pledges totaling $841,505. For more about reunion giving, see page 9.

Buoyed by a matching challenge gift by Dean Douglas and gifts from 3L parents, members of the Class of 2012 raised $47,026 in gifts and pledges for their 3L Gift. Hats off to Lindsey W. Davis '12 and Jessica G. McGough '12 who led the drive.

ADMISSIONS

The 196 members of the Class of 2015 who arrived in August were chosen from a pool of 5,573 applicants. These new students had a median LSAT of 164 and a median undergraduate G.P.A. of 3.74 (the highest in our history).

Twenty-seven students joined us as 2013 LL.M. degree candidates. These students hail from China, India, Jamaica, Nigeria, the United Kingdom, and the U.S.

Sixty-nine percent of the student body received financial aid in the form of scholarships or fellowships for the 2012–13 academic year; the total value of this aid was approximately $6.2 million.

PUBLIC SERVICE

Thirteen alumni received 2012 awards from the Law School's Loan Repayment Assistance Program. The program has provided forgivable loans totaling $267,521 to 45 graduates since 2005.

Forty-nine members of the Class of 2012 were recognized as W&M Law School Community Servants for providing more than 2,100 combined hours of pro bono legal assistance or volunteer community service.

During summer 2012, the Law School awarded almost $300,000 in Summer Public Service Fellowships to 105 rising 2Ls and 3Ls.

HONORS AND AWARDS

The W&M Property Rights Project honored Professor James E. Krier of the University of Michigan with the 2012 Brigham-Kanner Property Rights Prize.

The faculty honored Justice Antonin Scalia with the 2012 Marshall-Wythe Medallion, the highest honor conferred by the faculty. During the Justice's nearly day-long visit, he taught a class and fielded questions from students and faculty at a luncheon and dinner held in his honor.

Henry C. Wolf '64, JD '66 was among three leaders honored with the W&M Alumni Association's 2012 Alumni Medallion.

DEBATE BY CANDLELIGHT

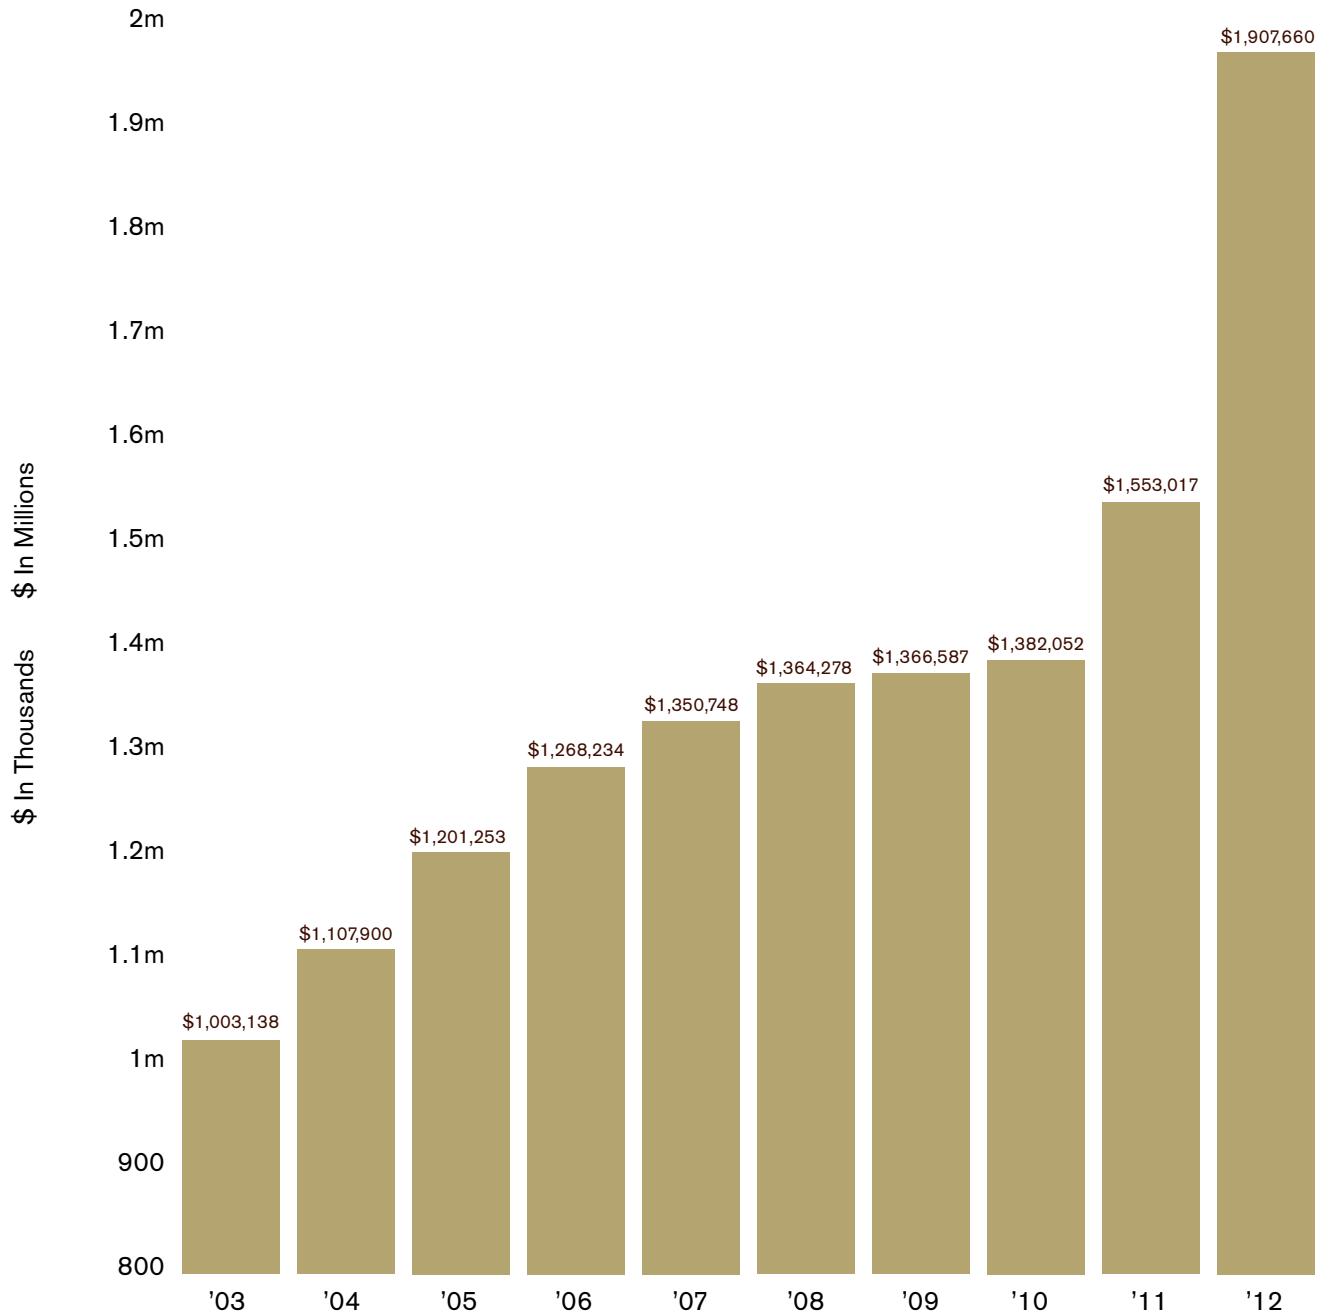

A visit by "Thomas Jefferson" was among the highlights of a February 2012 mock legislature sponsored by students at Colonial Williamsburg, an event that revived a 230-year-old Marshall-Wythe tradition.

Law School Endowments

Alumni Weekend 2012

On April 13–14, hundreds of alumni and their families returned to Williamsburg for a wonderful reunion weekend. These alumni rekindled memories, renewed friendships, and reconnected with the Law School. The annual celebration featured traditional events that have proved to be crowd pleasers — such as the Dean's reception on Friday night, tennis and golf, and the family picnic on Marshall-Wythe's lawn. The festivities moved on Saturday night to the Kingsmill Resort, where graduates and their guests gathered for the reunion dinner party. During the evening the Law School Association honored Courtney Malveaux '02 and Virginia Fogg '87 as the Distinguished Alumni of the 10th and 25th reunion classes.

TAKING A FIRM INTEREST

Anna Engh '89 Devotes Herself to Law in Every Way

Like many alums, she fondly remembers legendary former Dean William Spong, who was no longer dean when she was a student, but who taught her in a course. "He was, of course, a giant at the Law School," she says. "He was interested in all of us and gave us sage advice about the law and life in general. He once said that 'if you work at a firm, take an interest in the institution and devote yourself to it in every way.'"

Graduating from law school is an achievement — and as any alum can attest, it's exhausting. But Anna Engh '89 took it a couple of steps further. Not only did she graduate first in her class, she did so when she was eight months pregnant.

And four weeks after that baby was born, she sat for the bar in Washington, D.C.

"I don't know what I was thinking," Engh recounts with a laugh. "If I failed, I'd have had a good excuse."

Truth be told, Engh has always been a high achiever, devoting herself entirely to her studies, work, and family. A native of Elkins County, West Virginia, she graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Davidson College, and then earned a Masters in Education at the University of Virginia.

After several years teaching high school in Chatham, Virginia, Engh decided on a career change when her husband began his residency at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. They moved to New Kent County so she could commute to the Law School, where torts with Trotter Hardy and contracts with Tim Sullivan helped to introduce her to the law.

Engh immersed herself in her legal studies and served as managing editor of the Law Review. She remembers long hours on production work, making sure the grammar was sound and the facts thoroughly checked.

"The Review took up major amounts of time in my third year, but I loved it," she says. "We were a close staff, and they even threw me a baby shower, complete with stuffed animals and great food — a wonderful send-off, both to motherhood and my post-law school career."

Since 1997, Engh has been a partner in the litigation group at Covington & Burling LLP in Washington, D.C., and her current practice focuses on insurance coverage.

"Funny enough, I never studied insurance in law school," she says. "But it's a fascinating field and there's never a dull moment."

Engh likes to provide a different kind of insurance for her law school through her time and talent. Not only was she president of The Marshall-Wythe School of Law Foundation Board from 2009–11, but she also served on the search committee that recommended Davison Douglas as the new dean after Taylor Reveley became William & Mary president.

"It's a pleasure to serve the College in any way I can, meeting other alumni, keeping close to the beat of what's going on, and helping the Law School move forward," she says. Engh also supports the Law School with gifts to the Annual Fund and the Cabell Research Professorship.

"Being on the Foundation Board allowed me to see what private gifts can do first hand," she says. "Whether it's summer programs, faculty development, various clinics, or the library, there's something for every interest — and the school wisely puts its money where its mouth is."

Now that the younger of her two children is grown (and is a freshman at W&M), Engh continues to litigate insurance cases and also participates in panels at legal conferences and in bar activities. During her career at Covington & Burling, she has served on the Management Committee and as hiring partner and co-chair of the summer associate program. In addition, she has also been active in a variety of pro bono matters, including volunteering at the Bread for the City legal clinic and supervising representations of defendants on death row.

One imagines that Dean Spong would be proud.

THE INTERSECTION OF BUSINESS AND LAW

Terry E. Hall '86

Practices Good Citizenship Through Corporate Law

The Law School has always taken pride in its students. People with an array of backgrounds and interests. People with work-related and volunteer experiences. People who want to make a difference as citizen lawyers. People like Terry E. Hall '86.

Hall came to W&M with a long résumé and a desire to do more. After earning a degree from Eastern Kentucky University, the native of Columbus, Ohio, took a financial analyst job at the Newport News Shipyard in 1979, after which he earned an MBA at Old Dominion University. He went on to work as an economics instructor at Christopher Newport University and later as director of information technology at Hampton General Hospital. All this before returning to school to study law at 26.

"I wanted to combine my MBA with a law degree to advance my business career," Hall says. "My intention was to continue in the corporate world, and W&M prepared me well to maximize the benefit of my combined degrees."

At the Law School, Hall quickly discovered the strength of a world-class law faculty. "The reputation of the professors attracted me," he says. "Equally compelling was the overall academic strength of the school and the quality of its alumni and W&M's standing among other law schools."

Hall cites Professor Emeritus Elmer J. Schaefer as a faculty member whose business perspective still rings loud and clear in his current career. "I continue to use a lot of the theories and rational analysis we discussed in our corporate law courses," he says. "I took a lot of courses in the Master of Laws in Taxation Program; the rigor and discipline of interpreting tax code translates well into what I do on a regular basis in the corporate world."

And since his second year of law school, that world has meant Ferguson Enterprises, Inc., in Newport News, Virginia. "I started at Ferguson between my second and third year of law school," Hall explains. "I continued part time during my third year while I finished my degree."

As Ferguson's senior vice president and general counsel, Hall advises the country's largest wholesale distributor of plumbing supplies, pipes, valves and fittings and related building materials. He takes great pride in the company's growth over the years. "Twenty-seven years ago, we were a $200 million company, and now we're a $10 billion company," he says. "It's been a good opportunity to grow with an outstanding organization and to develop a legal department that we think is world class."

Hall is pleased to work for a company that realizes the importance of good citizenship and community engagement. Indeed, Ferguson's motto is "Nobody expects more from us than we do."

"I am most proud of Ferguson's philanthropic initiatives and the many other ways we go the extra mile," Hall says. "I am honored to be able to influence the way in which, as a corporate citizen, we engage in principles of good citizenship through our efforts to make a meaningful difference in the lives of youth and families in our community."

Hall goes the extra distance in his personal life by serving on the national advisory council of The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and numerous other civic organizations. He also supports his law school at every opportunity.

Recognizing the burden of student loans, Hall knows that his gifts of annual unrestricted funds help make a legal education possible for the many students he meets whenever he visits campus.

"It's wonderful to be associated with the Law School and its national acclaim as the nation's oldest 'and best' law school," he says. "I take a lot of pride in those traditions, and accordingly, support the Law School to ensure the continuation of W&M's superior reputation."

FAIRNESS AND DISCERNMENT FOR WHAT'S RIGHT AND WHAT'S WRONG

Eileen Olds '82

Brings Sense of Community to the Bench

Growing up in Chesapeake, Virginia, Eileen Olds '82 had a facility with conversation that impressed her elders. One of them, her second grade teacher, took notice and unwittingly planted the seed for her long career.

"You speak very well," the teacher told her. "You might be a great lawyer."

Not only a lawyer, but a trail-blazing judge as well. Olds smiles both at the memory of her teacher's offhand hunch and the irony of having no legal role models in her young life. Only when earning her B.A. with Distinction in psychology at the University of Virginia was she inspired to turn to the law.

"My parents were teachers, and I didn't know any lawyers until many years later," Olds explains. "Before I graduated, I took a legal reasoning course; I truly found it fascinating and thought to myself, 'This is me.'"

The next three years at the Law School solidified her chosen path. Inspired by the excellent faculty, Olds found it a challenging, but rewarding experience.

"It was law school, and it was intended to have us become the best we could be," she says. "Professors like John Levy provided wonderful mentoring, and Fred Lederer really piqued my interest in doing trial work."

After graduation, Olds began her own private practice in Chesapeake, and it wasn't long before she answered the call to public service. In 1984, Virginia's attorney general appointed her as counsel to the Department of Highways & Transportation, a position she held for two terms. In 1995, she was named judge for the Chesapeake Juvenile & Domestic Relations District Court. The appointment was historic, with Olds the first female and one of the first two African-American judges in the First Judicial District in Virginia.

"My appointment was not only personally gratifying, but it was viewed as good for the community," she explains. "There was no diversity on the bench before that."

Olds also served from 2000–04 as administrative judge for the third largest juvenile and domestic caseload in Virginia. Since 2000, she has also served as founding judge for the Chesapeake Truancy Court, where she created and implemented a program that targeted thousands of truant students, achieving an 87 percent success rate in returning youth to their educational programs.

Olds credits her background in psychology nearly as much as her knowledge of the law in helping those who appear before her.

"It's not something you can learn just through study of the law," she says. "The core is fairness and discernment for what's right and what's wrong. I don't stop until I do what I consider the right thing."

Olds also feels that a good judge must be a good listener. To that end, while serving as president of the American Judges Association for 2007-08, she instituted the "Tell It to the Judge" program, a multi-year initiative piloted in several jurisdictions around the country in which citizens could give voice to their concerns about fairness and justice.

Olds' efforts have brought her many honors, including the Distinguished Jurist Award from the National Association of Women Judges and the prestigious Thurgood Marshall Award from the National Bar Association in recognition of her commitment and personal contributions to the advancement of civil rights.

Not surprisingly, she loves her job. And the people whose lives she has touched are grateful. One parent wanted to invite Olds to her child's graduation; others refer to her as "my judge." As a strong believer in community, she takes each instance as a distinct compliment.

Olds cherishes being part of another community — the William & Mary family. More than 30 years later, she considers the Law School as a place that provides a great education, lasting friendships, and, most importantly, the legacy of the institution itself.

"Being associated with the Law School is definitely a badge of honor," she adds. "It gives me a credibility beyond what's expected."

HOISTING THE FLAG FOR MARSHALL-WYTHE

*Marc '85, JD '89 and
Meg Taylor JD '91
Celebrate the Law School Community*

Nearly 600 miles may separate Williamsburg and Atlanta, but the College is never far from the hearts and minds of Marc BA '85, JD '89 and Marguerite ("Meg") Taylor JD '91.

Not only do they get back to campus whenever possible, but they even bring the Law School home by hosting gatherings for fellow alumni.

"We've held events six years in a row, and it's always a highlight of the year for us," says Marc, a member of The Marshall-Wythe School of Law Foundation Board and founding member of Taylor English, a 120-person law firm based in Atlanta. "It's great that the dean and members of the faculty are so willing to get out in the field and address issues of the day for alumni."

Meg, an assistant general counsel for Delta Air Lines, Inc., responsible for the company's employment law and litigation needs, particularly enjoys getting news first-hand from Dean Davison Douglas. "I love hearing about the latest program enhancements and plans that are in the works," she says. "Not only do such things help today's students, but they enhance the value of our own law degrees."

It's no surprise that social gatherings are important to the Taylors. They met at one — a first-year picnic after Meg matriculated at Marshall-Wythe in 1988. The couple were married before she completed her degree in 1991.

The child of a government lawyer, Marc grew up in various parts of the country, eventually settling in Great Falls, Virginia. When it came time to head off to college, W&M was the obvious choice, and after earning a degree in history, he remained to study law. "The intimate feel of the College was particularly inviting," Marc says. "Add the simple fact that the school is renowned for a great education and a first-rate student body — coupled with its value proposition — and I was hooked."

Meg, who grew up in Long Island, New York, earned a degree in political science from James Madison University, and was attracted both by W&M's physically beautiful campus and rigorous academic environment.

"The campus and surrounding areas were picturesque and peaceful. The professors and students were all very friendly, approachable, smart people who were clearly excited and proud to be affiliated with the Law School," she says. "You had the very strong sense that everyone there wanted to be there."

Meg was also impressed with the faculty's egalitarian approach with students. "They listened thoughtfully to what we had to say and they responded thoughtfully," she explains. "They spoke to us as if we were peers, and they were very generous with their time."

The Taylors' own time these days is typically spent raising their three children and working at their respective law practices. Prior to forming Taylor English in 2005 with three other lawyers, Marc was a partner at Powell Goldstein LLP. His specialty is employment and labor law, although he spends much of his time helping to manage a growing law firm.

Both lawyers credit Marshall-Wythe's emphasis on the citizen-lawyer ideal as deeply informing their work. "It's one of the facts that makes the Law School so special," Marc says. "Marshall-Wythe grads are instilled with the belief that great responsibility comes with the privilege of holding a Marshall-Wythe degree."

As thanks for their education, the Taylors gladly provide generous annual financial support to the Law School. Meeting today's students, many of whom rely on private gifts from alumni, seals the deal for them.

"It feels very natural to continue to support the Law School," Meg says. "The students are mature and sophisticated, and with new technology have so much more knowledge available to them. It's a different world than when we were students."

A different world — maybe, but the Taylors know that William & Mary's unique educational foundation and core values are stronger than ever. And they are pleased to do their part to make sure that the school remains strong.

"With Dean Douglas and the faculty as great ambassadors, it makes you very proud to be an alum," Marc says. "It's great to hoist the flag for the Law School at every opportunity."

Lifetime Giving Societies

The Law School wishes to recognize its benefactors whose cumulative giving over the years has been at the level of $25,000 and above. Members of these gift clubs have shown extraordinary support of this institution. The Marshall-Wythe Society recognizes donors who have made cumulative gifts of $100,000 or more; the Thomas Jefferson Society recognizes donors who have made cumulative gifts of $50,000 to $99,999; and the Woodbridge Associates recognizes donors who have made cumulative gifts of $25,000 to $49,999. Please note that pledges and deferred gifts are not included when identifying the members of these groups.

WHY I GIVE

Josh Whitley '08
Attorney at Law, Smyth Whitley, LLC
Charleston, SC

I give because I appreciate the rich legal tradition William & Mary allowed me to take part in, and I want to pay it forward so that others may have the same opportunity.

WHY I GIVE

Jay K. Sinha '12
Associate, LeClairRyan
Alexandria, VA

Giving is my continued way to say thank you to all those professors, administrators and community members who made my legal education so profound. The William & Mary community is one I want to be part of for the rest of my life, and this is the best way to keep that link with our law school.

WHY I GIVE

Paul Marcus
Haynes Professor of Law

Working at the law school now for twenty years, I see the tremendous individuals who graduate from here with a fine education and become important members of our profession. With state funding limited it is vital, in my view, to support our programs with a special emphasis on those students who wish to work in the public interest.

WHY WE GIVE

Yunup Dennis Chong '07
*Attorney Advisor,
Social Security Administration
Arlington, VA*

Maryann Nolan Chong '07
*Program Operations Specialist,
U.S. Agency for International Development

We give because we are so grateful for the gifts we received from W&M Law: the gifts of great education, wonderful leadership, fantastic friendships, and lasting love.

WHY WE GIVE

Jeffrey T. Bozman '12

Patti and Raymond Bozman
Parents of Jeffrey T. Bozman '12

Because of William & Mary's reputation as a "military friendly" school and its support of service members through the Lewis B. Puller, Jr., Veterans Benefits Clinic, we are proud to contribute to the ongoing good works of this fine institution.
